The sea salt comes from salt marshes in South of France where it was already harvested long before the Roman Empire.

In our workshop, it is humidified, mixed with organic binders, powdered pigments, and pressed in molds. For a couple of days, the pieces are dried at a low temperature, before unfolding, polishing and varnishing.

Every piece is handmade & unique by nature, and delivered with an authenticity certificate.

By transforming raw salt into a noble material, Marbled Salts redefines the limits between art, design, and sustainability. Our brand offers a refined, conscious vision of contemporary creation — where material innovation serves both beauty and purpose. Each piece tells a story of transformation: from ephemeral matter to lasting emotion.

Roxane Lahidji is a social designer specializing in ecological material developments and applications.

Her research focuses on achieving luxurious-looking objects and surfaces from low costs and raw resources. With the deep concern of conciliating production and sustainability, her design uses disregarded or cheap materials brought to a new life, while twisting low-tech methods and traditional crafts techniques

After graduating from the Social Design department of Design Academy Eindhoven in 2017, Roxane Lahidji developed her project "Marbled salts" and was awarded among the 100 best French international designers by FD100 price of the VIA and won the 2019 Bolia award. Recently she was awarded by Wallpaper magazine with her Yubiwa side table amongst the "best elements of surprises". Her pieces are now sold, shipped and shown internationally in galleries and museums.

The Design Museum of Ghent, the CID Grand Hornu and the Musée des Arts Décoratifs de Paris notably acquired Marbled Salts pieces for their permanent design collection.

PROCESS

Marbled Salts Studio's process begins with material research. Sea salt is not treated as a substitute for stone, but as a living material with its own behaviors, limits, and possibilities. Through continuous experimentation, the studio develops proprietary recipes that allow salt to crystallize, bind, and harden, revealing textures and veining that emerge naturally rather than being imposed.

Each piece is shaped through a slow, hands-on approach. Casting, curing, carving, and finishing are carried out with careful attention to time, humidity, and touch. The process leaves room for chance: crystallization patterns, color variations, and surface irregularities are embraced as integral parts of the object's identity, making every piece unique.

VISION

At Marbled Salts, we strive to reconnect our audience—collectors, visitors, and collaborators alike—with their sense of wonder and curiosity.

Each creation is an invitation to rediscover the child-like joy of observation and imagination. Through the interplay of color, contrast, and form, our pieces breathe poetry into the everyday.

They bring softness and spontaneity back into spaces often defined by structure and repetition.

We believe that true elegance and rarity lies truly in process—in the care, experimentation, and emotion invested in each gesture. Our work seeks to remind that preciousness can emerge from the organic, and that beauty, when shaped by hand and heart, reconnects us with our true nature.

MISSION

Marbled Salts Studio explores the poetic potential of materials by transforming sea salt into sculptural objects that blur the boundaries between art and design. Rooted in material research and slow craftsmanship, the studio creates singular pieces that evoke natural stones such as marble or alabaster while offering an ecological alternative grounded in experimentation and care.

Each object is conceived as a meeting point between matter, time, and emotion — celebrating irregularity, fragility, and transformation rather than perfection or standardization. By embracing the unpredictable behavior of materials, Marbled Salts Studio allows form to emerge organically, giving each piece its own identity and narrative.
